The storm at Refton, New Providence, Quarryville and other places south of Lancaster was almost equally severe, the fall of rain being immense and the fields and roads badly washed. The loss in the corn and obacco fields is quite heavy.

On Friday afternoon there was a very heavy rainstorm at Bird-in-Hand and vicinity, but as it was unaccompanied by wind, very little damage was done.

The severest storm of thunder and lightning ever known at Drumore Centre tool place Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock. Great balls of fire fell from the clouds and as they struck trees or other objects, made leafening reports louder than whole batteries of artillery. A large oak tree near the hote was shattered, and a wagon tongue from which a boy had but a moment before unhitched the horses, was shivered into a thousand fragments. The rain poured down in torrents.

During the severe storm early on Saturday morning 214 inches of water is reported to have failen in one hour in Philadelphia.

A tremendous thunder sorm visited Eas ton and the surrounding district in Pennsyl vanis and New Jersey, on Saturday after noon. The house of George Fox, statlor agent at Manunka Chunk, was undermined by a rush of water from the tunnel and wrecked. Mrs. Fox's mother and her niece Mrs. Beers, were killed.

In Delense of Colwell, A Coatesville special to the Philadelphia Press says that Henry E. Hopkins, a colored man, was offered $200 if he could say that Tom Colwell was at Mame Toogood's on a certain Sunday night and took a bath there. Bertie Pennington, the colored girl who was reported to have loaned Colwell a revolver, when interviewed, said : "The first I heard of Colwell being suspected of being implicated in the Sharpless murder was about a year ago. Joseph Edson, of Christiana, a cousin of mine, came to me in Contesville and told me be had something to tell me. He then asked me if I ever loaned Colwell a revolver. I said no. He then told me John Garner, of Christiania, told him he would give us $500, to be equally divided between us, if he could get me to swear I had loaned Colwell a revolver. He then added: "What is the difference whether you loaned him one or not? Swear you did and we will get the money.' I said I could not swear to such a statement, and asked him why he wished me to do so. He told me that Garner suspected Colwell of being the murderer of Sharpless, and said if I would swear Tom had my revolver it would be an important link in convicting him. About two weeks after that Garner and a Lancaster detective named Barnholt called on me. Barnholt told me if I would swear Colwell had my revolver I would not lose anything. I told him it was not true and I could not."

Near Little. For some time it has been the custom of tramps to encamp in Henry Miller's woods, near Littz, and the neighbors have become tired of them. This morning Officers Barn-hold, Leman and Weaver drove out to Lititz and at an early hour surprised the gentlemen of the road. Ten men were quickly gathered in and brought to this city in an omnibus and other vehicles. They were taken before Alderman Barr, where they gave their names as Herman Hennich, Henry Neebe, Henry Zug, Philip Miller Henry Brown, George Fullmer, Fred Unger, Leo Jacobs, (not the Lancastrian of that name) Joseph Schilling and John Johnson. They were committed to prison on the charge of disorderly conduct and they will likely be held for being tramps. Littiz is a bad neighborhood for tramps who want to get off with less than three years.

Lively Times for Railroads Another freight car famine is rapidly developing. The demand for freight care has increased so rapidly within the past week that the different roads centering in Pittsburg have been taxed beyond their capacity. No in the history of the Pan Handle railroad has there ever before been such a demand for box, stock and gondola cars.
